

Stores that take back your old electronic item when you buy a replacement from them:

This lists all the companies currently known to provide an in-store take back service to customers. They have a legal obligation to take back an old electronic item in-store or through a postal system when you buy a replacement item from them.

Some companies provide an extended service to customers above their legal requirements and are prepared to accept waste electronics even if you aren't purchasing an item. For further details, check out the company's website and search for details on their recycling services.
